Stowe, Aug. 21.—E. C. Russell of this town, a well-to-do farmer, has been taken to a hospital in Burlington suffering from severe injuries to his back and shoulders caused by a severe tussle with a mad bull in the Russell barn yard Monday. Mr. Russell was attempting to lead the bull into the barn when the animal turned on him and rushed him to a corner. There was an iron ring in the animal's nostril which was seized by Mr. Russell and twisted until the blood ran from the bull, but to no avail as far as the determination of the beast to injure the man was concerned. After a short bit of struggling the bull succeeded in throwing Mr. Russell over its head and landing him on his back and shoulders with a violent force sufficient to dislocate one shoulder blade and cause other injuries.
